Dear Friends of the Chamber:

On behalf of Baylor College of Medicine, I would like to extend my congratulations for a remarkable year and best wishes for continued success. The close ties that exist within the Indian and Indo-American communities is a wonderful example of collaboration for success. I witness this everyday among our many trainees, faculty and staff, a considerable number of who have ties to India.

At Baylor, we often refer to the very real existence of the BCM "family" and viewing all members of our College as belonging to a greater gathering of people who share a commitment to enhancing health not only in our own community, but throughout the world. I see this same sense of family among the Indo-American community.

Anthony D'Angelo, founder of The Collegiate EmPowerment Company, once said, "Without a sense of caring, there can be no sense of community." The Indo-American Chamber is one of the finest examples I know of an organization that truly cares for the community as a whole and focuses on finding solutions to everyday challenges.

As the President of Baylor College of Medicine, I am humbled to be included among the advisors of the Chamber.

Sincerely,
